Y hosts crime fair

October is crime prevention month

By SHELLEY L. MCMURDIE
Universe Staff Writer

BYU hosted one of the largest anti-crime fairs in the state's history yesterday as part of National Crime Prevention Month issued by Gov. Norman H. Bangert.

The fair, called "A Family and Business Crime Prevention Fair," was sponsored by the Utah Valley Council for Crime Prevention.

"It's wonderful that so many people can come together to take a bite out of crime," said Lt. Gov. Val Oveson. Representing Gov. Bangert, Oveson presented the 1987 crime prevention proclamation.

"Whereas crime effects every citizen in the state of Utah, so must every citizen take the responsibility to reduce the incidence of crime," said Oveson reading from the proclamation. "Volunteer efforts combined with law enforcement is the only effective way to reduce and inhibit crime in our neighborhoods and state."

Every opportunity to instruct and train citizens, both young and old, in crime prevention techniques will serve to combat crime, said Oveson.

"Education in the schools to our children regarding all areas of personal safety will only help to secure our future, as our children are the state's greatest resource," he said. "Training of our young adults and adults will serve to create better precautionary measures as well as heighten awareness that will impede the criminal element."

Because the state of Utah's population is growing, the incidence of crime will also tend to increase. "Volunteer and professional crime prevention efforts must precede the growth and establish the example that will attract new citizens to the state who in turn will become involved in successful crime prevention programs."

The proclamation stated, "Therefore, as Governor of the state of Utah, I proclaim the month of October 1986 as Crime Prevention Month, and urge all citizens at every level to become involved in crime prevention programs such as property identification, residential security, self protection, child safety, anti-vandalism, anti-arson, Crime Solvers and anti-fraud. Through such united efforts, Utah and its citizens will 'Take a bite out of crime.'"

Keep ethics, official says

By DONALD W. MEYERS
Universe Staff Writer

Brent Ward, the U.S. Attorney for Utah, urged businessmen at a luncheon during the Family and Crime Prevention Fair Monday to "take off the blinders" and help stop crime.

"I suggest to you," Ward said to the assembled businessmen, "that even in business, businessmen and businesswomen have some responsibility to be their brother's keeper, to take off the blinders, to look beyond the bottom line and save themselves and others from unnecessary losses."

Ward then told the story of "David Miller," who had embezzled from his employer and was caught.

He was fired from his job, but he wasn't reported to the police because he promised to pay the amount back.

He paid back the money by embezzling from his next five employers.

Ward urged the employers to report all embezzlement to the police. "Businessmen have an ethical and a moral obligation which goes beyond getting their money back, and which goes beyond the embarrassment associated with someone like Mr. Miller. Mr. Miller was encouraged, in effect, in his wrong doing by not being reported," Ward said.

Candidates debate funds

HARD R. SUDWEEKS

ANITA PIERCE
Universe Staff Writer

Candidates for the 5th District's general school board election in November will be facing new proposals for the current school year's get.

Gov. Norman Bangert's new proposal asking public education to its already accepted budgets by their 2 percent has opened areas that must be looked at.

Richard R. Sudweeks is running for re-election against J. Blake Evans for the school board position.

If the proposal of the budget cuts pass in the legislature, then we need to find other places (revenues) that are already earmarked certain funds and to cut in places that serves to meet the problems," said Sudweeks, a present board member running for re-election.

Evans said that free education is a legacy of the past and the board should consider the funding needed to give kids a good education.

Both candidates said they would prefer to find other areas to cut rather than the classroom.

They have looked at various alternative programs for the district, such as the extension of classes taught by teachers, the addition of portable classrooms and the possibility of an 11-month school year. The candidates have positive feelings about the kind of aid this would give to the district.

"The board has found that if they allow teachers to teach more students in fewer classrooms it brings about an enhanced curriculum. Even with the larger classes, studies have shown the performance of the students has remained the same," said Sudweeks.

The decisions that the school board makes pertain to the students, faculty and staff of the entire district.

"The five board members bring ideas from their own backgrounds. I feel this shows strength in the decisions they make because it reflects the thought and discussion that has gone into it," said Sudweeks.

Evans said that as a member of the board he would be in favor of putting more discipline into the classroom.

"Guidelines could be set up to help and inspire students to have greater pride in their schools," said Evans.

He added that with an active and involved school board, the board can set up these guidelines to help the district and the superintendent can make sure the guidelines are carried out.

Sudweeks said board members should oversee the conduct of education in the schools and try to improve it.

"We should be more concerned about the quality of the education students are receiving rather than the quantity," said Sudweeks.

J. BLAKE EVANS

Both candidates agreed with the legislature's idea of allowing districts to involve a student representative on the board.

"Even though the student is not allowed to vote on the board, they are permitted to start a petition on an issue they are concerned about, and bring it to the attention of the board," said Sudweeks.

In addition, Evans expressed the importance of having the parents involved too, so there would be cooperation to include everyone.

"To associate with the citizens in my area, I went around door to door receiving no negative responses," said Sudweeks. However, he said there seems to be a disinterest from the public caused by complacency.

Evans added that it seems many of the parents are not aware of what is going on and that can account for the disinterest.

Both candidates want the citizens to be aware of their ideas. Alpine District will have its first meet-the-candidates night sometime during the first part of October.

U.S. creates major puzzle, says Harvard sociology prof.

By J. ALLEN
Universe Staff Writer

The stability of the United States in contrast to the rest of the world is a major sociological puzzle, said Daniel Bell, a Harvard University professor of sociology.

In the first of a two-part colloquium, Bell said Monday, "If one looks around the world, one thing that is striking is the tremendous amount of fragmentation. What is it that has allowed us to be free of the kind of civil strife that has afflicted the rest of the world?"

Fragmentation often leads to two kinds of conflicts: clan-based and religion-based, he said. Since the U.S. has become subject to these kinds of conflicts, they should be examined more closely.

Bell will discuss the forces that hold the U.S. together, and how the future will affect the cohesion and continuity of the nation, when he speaks at the first Forum Assembly of the Fall semester today in the Marriott Center at 11 a.m.

Blood guilt is at the root of clan-based conflict. In the clan, crimes are a personal obligation to be paid back, rather than a social debt, said Bell.

The modern Arab world still contains its clan elements, which lead to bloody feuds between religions, he said. Despite religious teachings to the contrary, some Arabs feel obligated to avenge members of their clan.

According to Bell, the first substantial progress from clan politics to politics on a more general level took place when the ancient Greeks began defining voting districts along geographic lines, dividing clans.

Religious strife in the modern world can be traced back to the Protestant Reformation, said Bell. "The Protestant Reformation has many ramifications for modern society."

With the Reformation came the very compelling idea of the "kingdom of God on the earth," said Bell.

Soviet sub sinks

WASHINGTON (AP) — A nuclear-powered, nuclear-armed Soviet submarine, apparently doomed from the moment it experienced a fire and explosion last Friday morning, sank and was abandoned by its crew early Monday in the western Atlantic Ocean.

The Soviet news agency Tass said no lives were lost when the so-called Yankee-class submarine went down around 4 a.m. EDT, and the Pentagon said it had no reason to doubt that statement.

The vessel sank in waters 18,000 feet deep about 1,060 nautical miles to the east of Cape Hatteras, N.C., or roughly 600 miles east of the island of Bermuda. A Soviet merchant ship, which earlier had been attempting to tow the vessel, collected survivors and remained in the area on Monday, the Pentagon said.

Two ranking U.S. military officers said the sinking posed no threat to the environment, even though the submarine was powered by two nuclear reactors and carried up to 16 nuclear-tipped, SS-N-6 ballistic missiles.

The warheads atop one of those missiles could very well have been blown into the sea and sank when the submarine experienced a fire and explosion while submerged on Friday, said Vice Adm. Powell F. Carter Jr., the staff director for the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The other warheads have undoubtedly been crushed and rendered useless by the pressure of the ocean's depth, he said, adding that the fuel inside the reactors is encased in a heavy metal that will likely deteriorate only over thousands of years.

Carter and Lt. Gen. Richard A. Burpee, the director of operations for the joint staff, said the sinking was observed on radar and intermittently by the crew of a Navy P-3 reconnaissance plane through the light provided by flares fired by the Russians at the scene.

A U.S. ocean-going tug was also near the scene at the time — about 48 nautical miles to the southwest — and offered assistance. But it was told to remain clear, the two said.

The two officers, while stressing that they couldn't say for sure, said it appeared the crew of the submarine never gained control of leaks caused by a fire and explosion on Friday.

Airport literature might be banned

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, starting its 1986-87 term with a new look and a flurry of activity, said Monday it will decide whether government-run airports may prohibit people from distributing literature inside terminals.

The court agreed to consider reinstating such a ban imposed on Jews for Jesus, a religious group, at Los Angeles International Airport. Lower courts said the ban violates free-speech rights.

Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist sat in the center chair of leadership for the first time and newly installed Justice Antonin Scalia joined in as the court issued orders in more than 1,000 cases and began hearing arguments in disputes already under study.

In other orders besides the airport case, the court:

—Agreed to use an Illinois case to decide a key point in obscenity prosecutions: whether local or national sensitivities apply when judging whether material is "utterly without redeeming value."

—Rejected the latest appeal by Dr. Jeffrey MacDonald, the former Green Beret physician serving a life prison sentence for the 1970 murders of his pregnant wife and two children.

—Refused to kill a lawsuit in which "pro-choice" individuals are seeking to have the Roman Catholic Church stripped of its tax-exempt status because of its anti-abortion lobbying.

—Cleared the way for NBC to collect more than $250,000 from political extremist Lyndon LaRouche stemming from his unsuccessful libel lawsuit against the network.

—Turned away the Iranian government's attempt to recover a $5 million loan made to Shams Pahlavi, a sister of the late Shah of Iran, by a Tehran bank 13 years ago.

—Let stand a $1.1 million award won by a California woman who suffered toxic shock syndrome after using a tampon made by Johnson & Johnson Products Inc.

—Rejected an appeal by a California transsexual barred from seeing her child after changing gender from a man to a woman. Lower courts said Tim Daly gave up his rights as a father when he became Suzanne Daly.

—Ruled that Texas school districts may not ban teachers from discussing or participating in union business during school hours.

Hostages issue plea for freedom

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Three French hostages said in a videotaped appeal for help Monday that they believe their government has abandoned them to a slow death and they cannot survive captivity much longer.

Islamic Jihad, the fundamentalist Shiite Moslem group that holds the Frenchmen and at least three Americans, said it would free them if Kuwait releases 17 prisoners convicted of bombing the U.S. and French embassies there in 1983.

The Islamic Jihad statement did not mention the American captives, but the group made the same demand in the past in exchange for their freedom.

Copies of the 20-minute videotape and the typewritten statement in Arabic from Islamic Jihad, whose name means Islamic Holy War, were delivered to offices of Western news agencies in Moslem west Beirut.

Hostage Jean-Paul Kauffmann, a journalist, appealed for diplomacy by Premier Jacques Chirac's government similar to tactics the U.S. government used to gain the release of American journalist Nicholas Daniloff from the Soviet Union. All three Frenchmen were kidnapped early last year.

In a similar videotape from Islamic Jihad last Friday, two American hostages asked the Reagan administration to work as hard for their freedom as it did for Daniloff's.

That appeal was made by Terry A. Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press, and David Jacobsen, director of the American University hospital in west Beirut. Anderson, 38, was kidnapped March 16, 1985, and Jacobsen, 55, was abducted May 28, 1985.

Daniloff, charged with espionage, was released in a deal under which Gennadiy Zakharov, a Soviet U.N. employee also charged with spying, was returned to Moscow and Soviet dissident Yuri Orlov and his wife were allowed to emigrate to the United States.

In its statement Monday, Islamic Jihad said: "We still are waiting for a serious move by the French government toward the release of the 17 strangers in Kuwait."

Islamic Jihad urged France to shun the "policy circle of the great Satan," the name Iran and fundamentalist Lebanese Shites use for the United States. Kuwait has refused to free any of the 17 prisoners.

Financier offers $8 million for USX

NEW YORK (AP) — Financier Carl C. Icahn offered nearly $8 billion in cash Monday to buy USX Corp., the troubled steel-energy giant that has been the subject of repeated takeover speculation in recent weeks.

The $31-a-share offer for USX's 257.3 million shares outstanding was one of the biggest acquisition proposals in U.S. corporate history and the largest proposed leveraged buyout, a transaction financed largely by borrowed money that is repaid with the target company's earnings or sale of assets.

The proposal offered the possibility of giving USX's unions part ownership in the company and came against a background of growing troubles at the parent of the nation's largest steelmaker, a symbol of U.S. corporate might.

USX steelworkers have not worked since Aug. 1 in a bitter labor dispute caused partly by a slump in the American steel industry. At the same time, USX's Marathon Oil Co. unit has suffered from declining oil prices.

Utah employs another 23,000 in 1985

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — There were 23,000 jobs added to Utah's labor market in 1985, a major factor in the decline of the state's unemployment rate by six-tenths of a percentage point, says the Utah Job Service.

Meantime, statistics show that annual per capita wages last year rose only $31 a month, said Job Service economist's Richard Newman.

Since 1984, 57,000 jobs have been added and the state's unemployment rate has dropped 3.3 percentage points.

Newman said almost half of 1985's new jobs were mining and durable goods, where wages tend to be higher.

Women held 41.4 percent of the jobs in Utah last year, continuing a trend which has seen more and more working women holding jobs.

"Non-agricultural jobs continued to flourish, although at a reduced velocity."

Year-end tallies revealed an average of 624,000 non-farm jobs in the state during 1985, an accumulation of 23,000 new jobs."

New newspaper, The Independent challenges Britain's four 'qualities'

Lures writers to 'uncertain future'

LONDON (AP) — The Independent, the first challenger this century to Britain's most prestigious newspapers, hits the streets early Tuesday aiming to take a slice of territory long held by the four eminent dailies.

Even before the initial print run of 650,000 on four computerized plants around the country, The Independent was at war with the "qualities," as the other papers are called — The Times and The Daily Telegraph, both right-of-center, the liberal Guardian and the politically-independent Financial Times.

In March, entrepreneur Eddy Shah launched a tabloid called Today, Britain's first new newspaper produced on high-quality presses.

Shah, dogged by technical problems and with a newspaper generay regarded as lacking editorial direction, lost control of Today in August to the multinational company Lonrho. It is now spending the equivalent of $10 million on a relaunch.

The Independent, conceived by Editor Andreas Whittam Smith, is the first newcomer among the so-called "quality" papers since the Financial Times was founded in 1888.

The Financial Times and the other three "qualities" have been scrambling against The Independent with television advertising and special promotions.

In a full-page advertisement in The Financial Times on Monday, The Independent complained that quartet — "desperate to strangle us at birth"

Ward suggested employers should report embezzlement to the police and let the judge worry about restitution. The police record will do the embezzler good by keeping him honest, Ward said.

Ward also told businessmen to be honest when giving references on former employees and to ask questions about former employment and education references on resumes.

"Check out where they went to school, call references and previous employers. Give fair and truthful answers when called upon to comment on former employees.

"I also suggest that small businessmen question unexplained, ostentatious wealth," Ward said, explaining that while Miller made $130,000 a year, he was giving cars away to relatives.

Ward also warned about having alcoholic or drug addicted employees. "Drug abuse cost the U.S. economy $60 billion in 1983, or nearly 30 percent more than in 1980. Employees who use drugs are far less productive than their co-workers and lose 10 times as many work days."

Ward referred to the history of Consolidated Media Services founder, K. Lance Botiff. Botiff got into the pressures and resorting to alcohol, marijuana and cocaine to escape them.

At one point, he was getting into every 15 minutes. As a consequence of this, Consolidated's income was down at $120,000 a year.

Ward said that alcohol is one of the more dangerous drug problems because of its availability.

Ward urged businesses to adopt a policy to counter the effects of drug use, including rehabilitation, pre-employment screening and random drug testing.

"We may fail. We can't offer our journalists security, but what we do offer is a chance to stop bemoaning the state of journalism and do something about it."

— Whittam Smith, editor, The Independent.

"It dawned on me I was working in some sort of cartel . . . got up by the unions," Whittam Smith, 49, said in a recent interview with The Associated Press.

"The cartel worked by arranging the price of labor so high and the restrictive practices so daunting that nobody new would ever come into the market."

With two other former Daily Telegraph journalists, Whittam Smith raised 18 million pounds, equivalent to $26 million, in less than a year to launch The Independent.

Geneva ruled on strike

Judge Jerold E. Luker ruled Friday that USX steelworkers of the Geneva Plant are on strike and not locked out.

Union officials are now pushing an appeal toward higher courts in an effort to get unemployment benefits for the 1,900 steelworkers of the Orem-based corporation.

Last summer — after voting to support a strike if one were called by their union — steelworker representatives failed to negotiate new working contracts with plant officials before the Aug. 1 deadline.

Utah Job Service denied steelworkers unemployment benefits when the plant closed in August because they claimed the workers were on strike.

The workers claim that they were willing to work under old contracts until new ones were signed. However, they say, they were locked out of the plant when they showed up for work.

Union representatives said that Friday's decision may cost steelworkers their homes and cars.

They added that the union will not give up the fight and may take the issue to the state Supreme Court.

The decision directly effects 1,900 steelworkers, most of whom reside in the Provo/Orem area.

It indirectly effects the entire Utah County economy.

Format changed

KCGL goes Christian from progressive rock

The new owner of KCGL 105.5 FM in Salt Lake City — Harold S. Schwarz, Inc., of St. Louis — announced a change in radio format Monday morning.

In two weeks, the station will change from a progressive-music to a Christian-rock station.

The new owners announced the format change after "firing" all the disc jockeys.

"It comes as a complete surprise to all of us," said Brian West, a former part-time disc jockey and a BYU junior from Bountiful.

KCGL was rated fourth in the last Birch radio poll in the Salt Lake City-

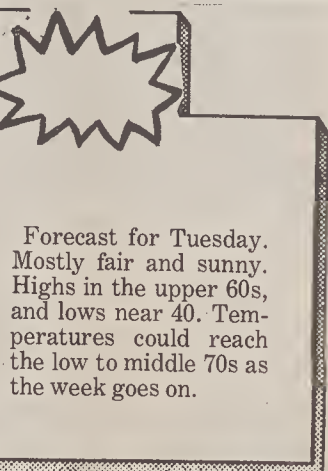

Ogden market, which covers more than 30 radio stations, financially successful with a large audience.

Although the signal is weak in the Point of the Mountain area, said BYU students can enjoy the station after purchasing a portable radio for the sole purpose of listening to the station.

"You're kidding!" said Brian West, a junior from Palo Alto, Calif., is the only station that plays music we like."

"Because of the success, we'll be able to get another station somewhere," said West.

Assault can occur

Common sense is key to preventing most rapes

By KENDRA L. KASL
Universe Staff Writer

The prevention of rape is 99 percent common sense, said the supervisor of criminal investigations at BYU, in a lecture given last night as part of the Crime Prevention Fair at the Harman Building.

Rape, which Arnie Lemmon said was "probably the fastest growing crime in America," is seldom reported to the BYU Police. There has not been a verified, reported rape on campus in 15 years, he said. However, Lemmon also said that 50 to 90 percent of rapes go unreported. "I think we're well into the 90 percent range."

There are five different stages of rape, said Lemmon. The first is selection, when the rapist chooses his potential victim. Here a rape can be prevented by simply using common sense, like avoiding potentially dangerous situations. Don't walk alone at night, don't let unidentified people into your home, and never hitchhike, said Lemmon.

The second stage is the testing/threatening stage. The rapist will try to take psychological control so the victim will not be as defensive. Lemmon said, "Rapists want to rape someone with low self-esteem." It is best to act confident and to try not to show fear, he said.

Communication is the next stage, when the rapist will describe his intentions.

Lemmon suggested using psychological means to escape a rapist. "What have you lost by talking to this guy? Time. Only time."

Treating the rapist as an individual and portraying yourself the same way may change the whole situation. If the victim is forced into a physical encounter, "you need to understand that you're fighting for your life, said Lemmon."

The actual sex act is the fourth stage of rape. Sign-off is the fifth stage and may be a threat, an apology or an excuse for the rape.

The guilt lies with the rapist, not the victim. Not everyone will escape rape, he said. Lemmon encouraged victims to report the crime.

Henry Ford II Professor of Social Sciences, Harvard University

"The Principles of Pluralism and Toleration"

This lecture builds on one to be given Monday, October 6, at 3 p.m. in 250 SWKT entitled "The Condition of Cohesion and Continuity in Society." Both addresses are part of a colloquium—free and open to the public—entitled "The Public Household: A New Definition of America."

In this second lecture, Professor Bell turns his attention from the post-industrial society and the contradictions emerging in our culture to the matter of the cultural and symbolic values that guide our behavior in society. He will probe the interplay between the public and private spheres of life in America, asking whether the most fundamentally important values can be preserved except through the successful operation of our nation's pluralistic communities, and whether the processes of the state pose potential harm to these values, to the cohesion and coherence of our society, and to individual liberty.

Selected readings are available in the HBL Reserve Library under the name of Daniel Bell.

Janine Lindsay, a BYU student is currently starring as Dot in "Sunday in the Park with George," a musical play. Lindsay received some advice from Bernadette Peters, who played the same role in the Broadway production. Lindsay, a junior from Los Altos, is majoring in musical theater. She went to New York City last summer to see a production of Peter's play "Sunday in the Park with George." Lindsay said she needed to meet someone who had been in the role of Dot in the Broadway production. Lindsay said she needed to meet someone who had been in the role of Dot in the Broadway production. oadway show to appear at BYU

BYU students will have the opportunity to see one of the first appearances of the play "Sunday in the Park with George" outside of Broadway. The play opens Wednesday in the de-Concert Hall, HFAC. The musical is by Stephen Sondheim and James Lapine. It is based on the painting, "Sunday Afternoon on the Island of La Grande Jatte." The play's focus is on two time periods: nineteenth century France and modern-day New York City — and the life of a woman and her relationship as they come to America.

Charles Whitman, director of the production, said they are not approaching the play the same way as the New York version focused on the life of a woman and her relationship as they come to America.

Seminar teaches kissing techniques

By B.L. BARKER
Universe Staff Writer

Some Provo residents disagree with a kissing specialist's premise that women kiss better than men. "Women are better kissers because they're more emotional. They're more mature about a relationship," said Tammi Smith, an employee at Morris Travel Agency. "Saying that women kiss better than men is totally irrelevant," remarked Provo High swim coach, Glenn Wilson. The debate was sparked by a United Press International article about family therapist Bill Entzminger, who arrived at the conclusion that women are better kissers from teaching a seminar called "Kissing with Confidence."

This is not a hands-on (or lips-on) course. The class is strictly texts and discussion.

The Dallas-based seminar, which is taught through Fun Ed, a private continuing education firm, always attracts more men than women.

"Women kiss better because they're warmer, more giving, more receptive people," said Entzminger. "With men, kissing is a performance. They have to live up to expectations that they're red hot lovers."

Provo marriage and family therapist Mark McGregor said he doesn't know of any research on kissing. "But if we could make generalizations," said McGregor, "based on researched sexual behavior, then it is possible to say that, in a kiss, men lean more toward sexuality and women desire more genuine warmth and affection."

When asked whether women kiss better than men, Kim Stanger, a recent graduate in accounting, said he didn't want to kiss a man to find out. "I'm not into facial hair," he explained.

Most local females agreed that women are better kissers. Their reasons included being more sensitive, kissing for different reasons than men and not being so animalistic.

Men, on the other hand, were divided in their opinions. Those who believed women are better kissers said it was because they have more practice.

Mark Robison, a senior in English from Oregon, said he has had the opportunity to teach several women how to kiss, mainly because of a woman who taught him the art well. "I'm grateful my first experience was with an older woman," he said.

A few of the men were excited about the ideas of doing field research.

A critical part of determining which sex smooches better is in defining exactly what a good kiss is.

Entzminger said, "Warm, soft lips, no hard lips, no sloppy sliding around — especially at first — make for a good kiss."

A good kiss is creative and without chapped lips, said Wilson.

Scott Badham, a general education major at UTECH, explained that "even if both are really good kissers, the first kiss can be really bad until you get used to each other."

In addition to pliable, puckered lips, both sexes agreed that timing and liking the person are essential ingredients for enjoyable osculation.

Music faculty members to perform concert

By MATTHEW R. BRYAN
Universe Staff Writer

The BYU Piano Quartet will perform Tuesday, Oct. 7, at 7:30 p.m. in the Madsen Recital Hall, HFAC.

BYU music faculty members Douglas Humpherys, Paul Pollei, Ronald Staheli and Mack Wilberg will combine their talents as members of the piano ensemble, featuring eight hands on two and four pianos. Humpherys and Pollei are members of the piano faculty, and Staheli and Wilberg direct the two premiere audition choirs at the university.

This unique ensemble began performing together two years ago at a Halloween concert and has continued to play because, as Mack Wilberg said, "We work very well together. I enjoy the aspect of making music together as an ensemble on the piano, since it is usually a solo instrument," he said.

According to Wilberg, it is "unusual to find this type of a combination of musicians and personalities that works this well together."

He added that the concert will be "uniquely enjoyable because of the varied program. Music of this type is rarely performed," said Wilberg, citing the difficulty of finding literature arranged for eight hands.

The program will include Le Bal from "Jeux d'enfants" and Menuet No. 1 from "L'Arlesienne," both by Bizet.

It will also feature "Petite Suite" in four movements by Debussy and "Paris," a suite for four pianos by Milhaud. Also featured will be Rondo in C Major and Sonata in One Movement, both by Smetana; Quodlibet on American Folk Tunes by Ingolf Dahl, which includes excerpts from "Arkansas Traveler" and "Turkey in the Straw"; and Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2 by Franz Liszt.

Humpherys was the first winner of the Gina Bachauer Piano Competition in 1976. Wilberg has performed with the Utah and Mormon Youth Symphonies. Pollei is past vice-president of the Utah Music Teachers Association and Staheli received numerous piano awards while a student at BYU.

This free recital is open to the public.

Monsters bash serves as charity fund-raiser

A haunted house, complete with monsters, creatures and special effects, is currently open and ready to frighten all who dare to enter.

The Macabre Mansion, located in the Triad Center at 150 S. 300 West in Salt Lake City, is a spooky house which benefits the Arthritis Foundation, American Diabetes Association and the Medic Alert.

The Mansion hours are Monday through Thursday, 7-9:30 p.m. and Friday and Saturday, 7-10:30 p.m. It will be open until Oct. 31.

The cost is $4.50, but students will be admitted for $3 with school identification cards. Discount tickets are available for groups of ten or more at Arctic Circle restaurants.

"This haunted house has something for everybody," said Stacey Root of the Arthritis Foundation. "We have a room with eight lasers, many new special effects, a chain-link fence maze lit with strobe lights, and monsters built by set designers."

Root said the tour of the spook house will last 25 to 40 minutes, which is the longest haunted house show they have ever put on.

"We began this annual haunted mansion seven years ago to raise money for these three foundations," said Root. "The Arthritis Foundation, American Diabetes Association and the Medic Alert Foundation will receive all the profits."

Root said there are 60 volunteer workers who have been setting up the haunted mansion for a month.

The Macabre Mansion is co-sponsored by Pepsi, KCGL, Arctic Circle restaurants and KTVX-TV channel 4.

Top 9 teams hold ground

By The Associated Press

The University of Miami remained No. 1 Monday in the Associated Press college football poll, but second-ranked Alabama made up ground on the Hurricanes while Stanford and Mississippi State cracked the top twenty for the first time in five years.

Miami, which climbed into the No. 1 spot after beating Oklahoma, cruised past Northern Illinois 34-0 on Saturday for its fifth consecutive victory. The Hurricanes received 55 of 58 first-place votes and 1,155 of a possible 1,160 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

The first nine teams are the same as last week. Third-ranked Nebraska edged South Carolina 27-24 and received 988 points while Michigan remained No. 4 with 959 points after downing Wisconsin 34-17.

BYU (3-2) failed to get any votes in the poll after the Cougars were upset by Colorado State 24-20 last week. Air Force (4-1) received nine votes and the Rams got one vote after their win.

Stanford is 4-0 after beating San Diego State 17-10. The Cardinals last made the top twenty during the first week of the 1981 season.

Mississippi State, which was in the top twenty several times in 1981, is 4-1 after defeating Memphis State 34-

17. Clemson, 3-1, after blanking The Citadel 24-0, also appeared for the first time this season.

Hawks club Chargers

SEATTLE (AP) — Dave Krieg threw for three touchdowns, two in an 18-second span in the third quarter, as Seattle beat San Diego 33-7 Monday on a record-breaking receiving night for the Seahawks' Steve Largent and the Chargers' Charlie Joiner.

After a frustrating start, Largent caught a 17-yarder from Krieg early in the second quarter for his 128th consecutive game with a catch. He also moved into fourth place on the all-time receiving yardage list and caught a 15-yard touchdown pass, the second of Krieg's three.

Joiner moved past Don Maynard to become the NFL's all-time receiving yardage leader on a 20-yard pass from Dan Fouts in the third quarter. He finished with four receptions for 39 yards and now has 11,855.

It was also a banner night for Seattle's Norm Johnson, who kicked four field goals, including a 54-yarder that tied his own team record, and for Curt Warner, who ran for 142 yards in 28 carries. Krieg, whose other scoring passes were a 46-yarder to Byron Franklin and a two-yarder to Eric Lane from BYU, was 21 of 35 for 284 yards.

'Cats claw to tourney win

By LYNDA WALKER
Universe Sports Writer

Over the weekend BYU men's soccer team successfully defended its title at the BYU Invitational.

The clincher came Saturday afternoon when BYU went into double-overtime, before taking a 3-2 triumph over United States International University 3-2.

BYU's record is now 4-7.

"They really surprised us with their strength," said USIU Coach Mike Hovenic.

He said that after watching the Cougars defeat Westminster College 5-1 on Friday, USIU didn't expect BYU to be as tough as they were.

"They really were two different teams," he said, referring to Friday's game and then to Saturday's. "BYU played a good game. Their record is not indicative of BYU's strengths."

In overtime BYU's Jess Birtcher pegged a shot to the corner of the Gulls net to win the tournament. BYU used a solid defense to subdue the USIU offense and secure the win.

"This is the biggest win of the season for us. This will give us some momentum for our trip to California next week," said BYU Coach Jim Dusara.

The Cougars' Cesar Cardoso scored in the 30th minute of the game to give BYU an early 1-0 lead. The Gulls evened the score with a goal by Jon Sissons. The Gulls accidentally scored the next goal for the Cougars when a USIU defender accidentally headed the ball beyond his goalie and into the net in an effort to clear a centering kick by Cougar Brian Motto.

This lead held for the Cats until minutes into the game as Walker scored from deep in the box for USIU. This tied the score 2-2 and sent the championship into overtime.

Cougar standouts in the game were Brian Hilton and Motto on the defense, and Findlay and Jo Ngassa who played key roles in the win, said Dusara.

In Friday's win Mike Bodon, Cardoso, Corey Findlay, and Benites were credited with goals for the Cougars.

Next week the team will be in California playing at San Jose State, University of Santa Clara, and the Berkley Invitational Tournament.

BYU women's soccer team claims invitational

The BYU women's soccer team claimed the title of its invitational tournament by being the only team in the tourney to finish without a loss.

In the championship game Saturday BYU and Colorado State ended in a 0-0 tie due to lack of lights on Haws Field. In the tournament BYU finished with a win and a tie. CSU and Air Force each had a loss in the tournament which gave BYU the title.

The Cougars are now 5-0-1 on the season.

BYU met Air Force earlier Saturday and defeated the Falcons 2-1.

Cougar coach Reed Paulson was satisfied with the play of his team.

"Both Air Force and CSU are competitive," he said. "I was pleased with the way the team played."

In the Air Force game, B Danelle Winn scored on a penalty in the last five minutes of play to defeat the Falcons.

Harriers 6th in NCAA poll

ALO ALTO, Calif. — BYU women's cross country team moved to No. 6 in the NCAA men's cross country poll released Monday. The Cougars earned the right to move up in the rankings when they finished second at the Stanford Invitational Saturday. Stanford won the event, beating the Cougars by one point, 107-108. The low score determines the winner in cross country tournaments. On its route to its second-place finish, BYU beat the higher-ranked teams: Cal Poly SLO, Arkansas and Clemson. BYU senior Julie Jenkins, Plain City, Utah, finished ninth with a time of 17:21, fastest of the BYU runners. 300 women ran in the 5,000-meter race. "I was delighted with Julie finishing ninth," said

BYU Coach Patrick Shane Saturday. "I look for her to continue to run as well as she did today." Of BYU's scoring five, Nancy Anderson was 17th (17:30); Noeleen Mullan 23rd (17:34); Angela Cook (17:35); and Nicole Keller (17:53). Non-scoring Cougars were Melanie Child (18:18); Lisa Burgoyne (18:19) and Rebecca Chamberlain (18:25). Meanwhile the BYU men's cross country team finished fifth in the men's 10,000-meter race at the same meet. North Carolina won the meet with 85 points. BYU had 214 points. Individually, BYU's top runner was senior Wes Ashford who covered the course in 31:44.1 for 19th place. The second place finisher for the Cougar harriers was Rad Shirley at 31:49.5 at 23rd. Larry Smithee, last week's medalist at the Au-turn Classic in Provo, was BYU's No. 8 finisher. Sherald James, the BYU men's coach, said his No. 2 runner, David O'Hara, did not make the trip because of illness. James substituted a pair of freshmen, but one got injured and the other became sick. "Considering the circumstances I thought we performed very well," said James. "I felt if we could get into the top ten we would be doing well. This was kind of a dress rehearsal for the upcoming NCAA Championships and our team continues to surprise me each week." The next meet for both the men's and women's team will be at the Wisconsin Invitational in Madison on Oct. 18. The Wisconsin women's cross country team is the two-time defending NCAA champion.

Kittens host Weber St. Golfers finish 16th in NM tournament is Thursday at 1 p.m. in Cougar Stadium BYU's junior varsity football team hosts Weber State in what will be the last game of the season for two squads. The 1-2 Kittens host the 0-2 Wildcat in the only home game of the season for the BYU jayvees. The regular season games have been canceled for Oct. 17 and 31, but there is a possibility of rescheduling a second game between the two teams, according to BYU Coach George Bayless. Bayless says freshman quarterback Brett Salisbury will likely not play because of a knee injury sustained two weeks ago at Ricks. The team is scheduled to play Weber State, probably be either walk-on freshman John Kimball or Mark Smith.

Kimball is 6-foot-1, 173 pounds from Laguna Beach, Calif., and Smith, the younger brother of BYU basketball sophomore Michael, is 6-foot-0 and a half, at 174 pounds from Hacienda Heights, Calif. Other Kittens who are out because of injuries at the Ricks game are punter Randy Stout and defensive lineman Scott Moberly. Bayless says wide receiver Matt Odle, who injured his knee at Snow, has returned to practicing and will play against WSC. "Injuries at Weber have forced them to cancel our regularly scheduled games this season," says Bayless. "We have been maintaining a good attitude on our team since the Ricks loss and have been working hard despite all of the frustrations."

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — 906 score to edge Arizona State by two strokes. BYU finished with a 969. Weber State was 12th at 945. Karen Davis of Florida won the individual honors with a 220. Pam Wright of Arizona State, the leader of the first two rounds, finished tied for second with two others at 223. Karen-Mike Zielenski topped the BYU scores with a 238. Other BYU scores were Mary Grace Estueta 242; Nancy Callan 243; Martha Vargas 247 and Mariana Pacheco 253.

McMahon tired of sore shoulder, may get surgery

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (AP) — Quarterback Jim McMahon of the Chicago Bears said Monday he is considering arthroscopic shoulder surgery, either during or after the next season. "It hurts. I don't like waking up the next day and having it hurt all day," McMahon said as he pushed a cart back in place over his right thrower. McMahon suffered a first-degree, mild, shoulder separation in the third quarter of the season opener against Cleveland. McMahon missed the next two games against Philadelphia and San Francisco, but returned to guide the Bears to Super Bowl championships in 1985 over Cincinnati and Minneapolis. "I don't know if it is any worse," McMahon said. "I'd say it's about the same. I don't feel it during the week except I don't throw. I'm still throwing during games and the timing is off." McMahon indicated surgery was a possibility. "I had it scoped I'd miss about two weeks," said McMahon. "Then again, it might heal itself. There's a lot of temptation for surgery. It isn't a difficult or serious operation. I don't like waking up hurting." McMahon had X-rays taken after the original injury in the Cleveland game when the slight separation was discovered, but surgery was not needed. McMahon said he landed on the shoulder two or three times in San Francisco game against Minnesota, which did not help matters. "We are also considering the possibility of sitting out a couple of weeks in the season to rest and maybe the shoulder — if the Bears are needed of a playoff berth. If we win our next two or three games, we could probably be in the playoffs seat (for making the playoffs)," said McMahon. "Then I could have a couple of weeks." That's what McMahon did last season when he had tendinitis in his right shoulder. But he came back strong in the final three games of the regular season and then directed the Bears to Super Bowl victories. McMahon said last year's injury was the one this season are unrelated. Coach Mike Ditka was unaware McMahon was thinking about surgery, but he did see the possibility of having his quarterback if the Bears needed a position in which they could make such a move.

Harvard sociologist discusses opinions

DANIEL J. BELL

Editors note: The following is an interview with Daniel Bell, today's speaker. Bell is a professor of sociology at Harvard University. He was interviewed by Todd A. Britsch, dean of the BYU College of Humanities.

For most of your life you have been associated with the Eastern intellectual community. In addition, you have taught at Columbia, Harvard, the London School of Economics and now at Cambridge University in England. At the same time, you have had a rather long association with Brigham Young University. How do you comment on the role you play in Brigham Young and other institutions that are separated both geographically and personally in tradition from other American and European institutions?

My interest in Brigham Young, in regard to it from a philosophical point of view, is that it represents an attempt to create a new kind of community. There are very few universities which would have a sense of community and purpose. It seems to me a university is best when it is able to embody the attraction of the English universities, for example, such as Oxford and Cambridge, is that they are long-standing communities rooted in tradition. There are very few universities in America which have that. To some extent Harvard has it, less in terms of the attachment between persons than it does out of a tradition of scholarship and excellence — in terms of picking the best persons. I am always curious about the nature of university structures which have that degree of community and that for me is the interest of Brigham Young.

Fields questions on BYU, religion, law

Q. Although you include a question mark in the title of your 1977 essay, "The Return of the Sacred?", the essay does hold out hope that religion in its true existential role may be regaining influence as the culture of modernism declines. You mentioned the revival of fundamentalist beliefs in the United States, but as a more general kind of a view do you feel that religion in some general way is enjoying some kind of a return, regaining of influence in the United States?

A. I do, with this problem — that for most people there is a searching for some sense of attachment to religion, but whether this can become institutionalized into a continuity of generations becomes the real problem. The strength of the fundamentalist tradition, of course, is they have this strong institutional structure as does, for example, the Mormon Church. Therefore, the continuity is built into those structures. But for many people there is simply a searching and a hope, and the question is whether they can in effect create a degree of attachments which form a coherence and therefore provide a continuity for future generations. And that is for me problematic.

Q. You have an almost unique capacity to shift from sociology in its narrow sense to many other disciplines. You've looked at art, you've looked at politics, economics, etcetera. In part of the material you suggested that students should read in preparation for lectures at BYU, you have listed works by classical philosophers and authors, in this case Aristotle and Kant. Are there reasons for this emphasis on traditional humanistic texts?

A. The fundamental reason is that almost all of the major questions we still confront were posed by these writers. Our answers vary because of the shifting nature of the complexity of the kind of life which we've been constructing, particularly because of the technology. But the questions remain the same. In one of the lectures I am going to back to the foundation myths, as I put them, of Western life which is certain notions of the Greek polis, of the Greek political thought as posing questions of what, how, this society together and raising the question to what extent we are still able to fulfill some of those ambitions of the Greek polis, particularly as set forth in Aristotle's "Politics."

Q. You have mentioned in some of your writings that American society functions best where government is strictly limited in its power to interfere in areas traditionally restricted to private spheres. Does such a position require other institutions, that are not governmental, that not only give moral and philosophical guidance, but actually have moral authority and, if so, do such institutions still exist?

A. Yes, it does require even more of an obligation on the part of what might be called mediating institutions, to exercise moral authority. Do they exist? In different degrees. Really in the Mormon community they exist fairly strongly through the church. In other communities they exist as well. But whether they exist in the country as a whole is a question, and that is one of the themes I will be taking up on the second lecture.

TODD A. BRITSCH

Q. There are various attitudes about the relationship of law to society. Some see it as the highest expression of society's moral character, and others feel law prescribes only the lowest acceptable behavior. What do you see as law's proper function?

A. For me as the starting point is Kant's argument that law is primarily procedural and formal — not substantive. It does not deal with the content of behavior, but sets basic rules within which individuals guide themselves. Therefore, there is in Kant a separation of law from morality. Morality is basically a private sphere and the law should not interfere with elements of the private sphere, particularly elements such as religious beliefs. If you believe that law and morality are one, then one would have to accept the argument that law should also regulate religious beliefs, since morality is part of religious beliefs.

Church inspires writer

SLAKE CITY (AP) — The life of Mormon and LDS Church history have served as the inspiration for a number of Orson Scott Card's science fiction stories, the writer says. Card's writings include such well-known sci-fi works as "Speaker for the Dead," "A Planet Called Treason," "Songmaster," and his latest "Ender's Game." A lot of my story ideas have come from the Book of Mormon. I catch some Mormon idea. I will put it out, but unconsciously, I put it there," the former Orem resident said. Card is currently working on a series of six novels. The first is "The

Tales of Alvin Maker."

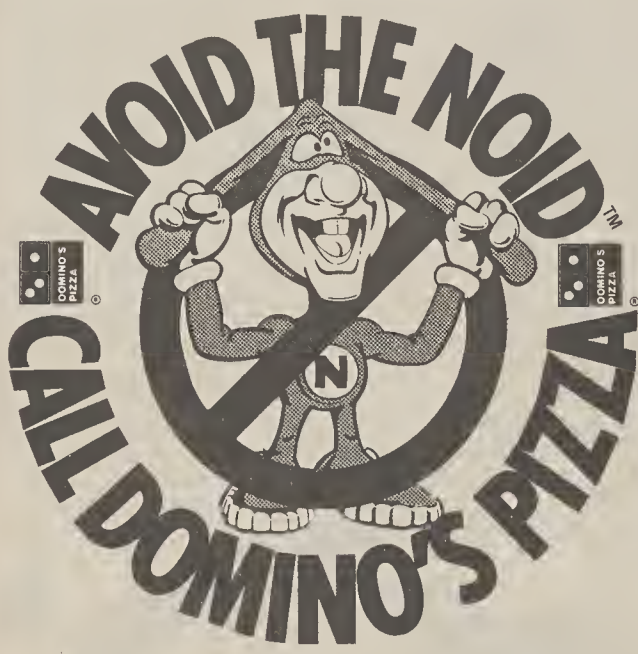

Those familiar with the history of the LDS Church will recognize Alvin as an allegory of Joseph Smith.

"I think it will do really well. Mormons and non-Mormons will have a lot of fun with it."

The recipient of sci-fi writing's coveted Nebula and Hugo awards, is a graduate of BYU and the University of Utah.

Science fiction is not the field Card envisioned himself working in.

"I was an archaeology major at BYU and was taking theater classes," said Card. "I started as a playwright — but you can lose money putting on plays."

Officers kept busy

Police encounter three odd cases

By LANE WILLIAMS
Universe Staff Writer

Orem Police reported three unusual stories which took place over the weekend.

One concerned a suspects' misfortune, another involved a citizen chasing a suspect and a third involved a babysitter who helped deliver an infant.

According to police spokesman Gerald Nielsen, officers investigating a gasoline theft were rerouted to the scene of an auto accident.

When they arrived at the scene, the officers recognized the two individuals involved in the accident to be the suspects for the theft crime.

Nielsen said that the suspects, 20-year-old Craig Nathan Grant from Provo, and a 16-year-old Orem boy, whose name cannot be released, took some gasoline from a local convenience store in Orem about 3:30 a.m. Friday.

While fleeing from the store, the suspects were involved in an accident and were later charged with theft.

The driver was charged with drunk driving, and the juvenile was charged with illegal consumption of alcohol, Nielsen said.

In another report, Nielsen said that two citizens apprehended a 15-year-old boy who took a woman's purse from a local shopping market.

The Orem youth, whose name was also withheld because he is a juvenile, allegedly took the purse from a woman's shopping cart in an Orem grocery store and fled the scene on a bicycle.

One citizen pursued the juvenile on foot to an orchard while another citizen drove to the other side of it and apprehended the boy.

Nielsen said the citizens returned the purse and its contents to the woman and held the youth until police arrived.

"We appreciate these kind of things. It's good to see citizens get involved," Nielsen said.

In a third report, police officers and a baby-sitter delivered a baby before paramedics could arrive.

Ginger Hutchinson of Orem went into labor late Saturday night.

She called her mother to take her to the hospital because her husband had just left for work.

She then asked her neighbor, Yvonne Davis, 17, to babysit her other children while she was in delivery.

Hutchinson, realizing it would be a quick delivery, called the 911 emergency number.

Orem Police Patrolman Rick Rowe and Sergeant Rex Skinner arrived shortly after Davis.

The two police officers and Davis delivered an 8-pound baby girl at 12:49 a.m. Mother and child are reported in good condition.

ID tag may save lives

A tag giving parental consent for medical treatment of children in an emergency is being offered free at local hospitals.

By law, doctors cannot treat minors without parental consent unless the emergency is deemed to be life-threatening.

Orem Community Hospital and Utah Valley Regional Medical Center are offering "lifesaver tags" which give parental consent.

The small, machine washable tags can be filled out with a ball point pen and sewn into clothes or attached to shoe laces.

The tag also provides identification and special medical needs of the child.

The free tags can be obtained by going to the Emergency Center at either hospital.

People getting fatter, says BYU physiologist

By MARK C. SHERWOOD
Universe Staff Writer

Americans are eating less than ever but are still getting fatter, said Garth Fisher, director of BYU's Human Performance Research Center.

Fisher, an exercise physiologist, said fatness is not associated with eating.

"If people only cut down on the calories that they eat, it will cause some serious problems," he said.

Dieting detrimental

People need to change the way they eat, not the number of calories, Fisher said. Dieting can actually be detrimental to health. Eighteen-hundred to 2,000 calories per day comprises a starvation diet.

The more people diet the fatter they actually get, he said.

A regular American diet consists of 40 percent fat, 97 percent of which is directly stored in the body. If people were to eat more carbohydrates with the same caloric intake, it would be much more healthful, and body weight would stabilize, Fisher said.

Weight-loss guidelines

Fisher outlined some basic guidelines that will help people lose weight.

1) By all means, don't diet (in the traditional sense of low-caloric methods).

2) Exercise. This is the key to weight control. Exercise does much more than just burn calories. It also decreases the set point (the weight considered "normal" for the body), lowers metabolism, develops lean body mass, helps you to feel good and burns calories.

3) Decrease all fats and sugars, and increase complex carbohydrates intake.

We can no longer say that "a calorie is a calorie. A calorie is not a calorie!" said Fisher. You can eat the exact same amount of calories if you eat the right foods, he said.

Proper diet necessary

The proper diet should include low-fat meats, with meals revolving around vegetables (3 or 4 per meal even).

It should also include more fish, chicken and turkey and snacking on low-fat yogurts and cottage cheese, according to Fisher.

Fisher said to decrease dressings, cut out butter, margarine and grease when cooking and stop drinking whole milk (which is 50 percent fat by calorie).

Admitting that change will not occur over night, Fisher said people should no longer set goals for weight-loss, but rather performance goals that can be monitored such as exercising and cutting out butter.

Because weight is dependent on so many factors (holding water, time of day, etc.), it is difficult to set weight-loss goals, he said.

Fisher said that by eating proper foods and exercising, weight control can be within everyone's grasp. For more information contact Fisher at 378-3981.
